Therefore, this handbook represents a refined version of procedures to be employed once a district comes under a hurricane emergency.

HURRICANE

Tropical Disturbances which may become hurricanes usually can be tracked for several days before the storm builds to a dangerous size and makes landfall. The National Weather Service (NOAA) issues the following advisories when land areas are in danger.

Hurricane Watch

This means a hurricane may affect coastal and inland areas. A hurricane watch means that hurricane conditions are a real possibility; it does not mean they are imminent. When a hurricane watch is issued, everyone in the area covered by the watch must listen for further advisories and be prepared to act promptly if a hurricane warning is issued.

Hurricane Warning

This is issued when a hurricane is expected to strike an area within 24 hours. Advisories containing hurricane warnings may also contain an assessment of flood danger in coastal and inland areas, small craft warnings, and gale warnings for a storm peripheries, estimated storm effects and recommended emergency procedures.

Hurricane Strength Categories

Category	Winds (MPH)
1	74 – 95
2	95 – 110
3	111 – 130
4	131 – 155
5	Over 155

Level Five (5) is 250 times more destructive than Level One (1). The right front quadrant and the area around the eye are the most dangerous. Most severe wind damage is on the back of the storm.
